

Early in the nineteenth century an interesting little guidebook was published in London. Its undated title-page was followed by a dated Advertisement, or introduction, and the later editions were mostly the same. It was compiled by John Feltham and included some small maps and a series of sixteen miniature ones, all about 125 x 75 mm:

Bath and Bristol; Worthing Little Hampton and Great Bognor; Brighton and Eastbourne; Clifton and Hot Wells; Buxton and Matlock; Cheltenham; Isle of Wight; Sidmouth Exmouth Dawlish Teignmouth and Shaldon; Harrogate; Hastings; Margate Broadstairs and Ramsgate; Scarborough; Southampton; Tenby including Milford Haven and the Island of Caldy; Tunbridge Wells; Weymouth and Portland.

A Guide to all the watering and sea-bathing places; with a description of The Lakes; a sketch of a tour in Wales; and itineraries. Illustrated with maps and views. London, Richard Phillips, (1803), (1804), (1806), (1810), (1812), (1813); Longman & others, (1815), (1820), (1824), (1825).
