

The French Société Nationale pour L'Émancipation Intellectuelle published a pair of paperback pocket atlases. One of the world was by Victor Levasseur (see 1833a) and one of France, with its title-page printed on the paper cover, was by Aristide-Michel Perrot. This contained a small folding key map of France and his fifth series of miniatures, with forty eight maps about 125 x 90 mm. but with the other thirty eight in portrait format:

These eighty six maps of the French departments are quite plain and a complete contrast to his first series (see 1821). They were engraved on steel by Pierre Tardieu and have the signatures of both men, mostly within the bottom border. The atlas was often bound with that of Levasseur and was also published together with an explanatory and complementary text with a joint title-page, as Annuaire de France. A few years later a different edition appeared (see 1837), with a new title and newly engraved plates.
