Philip D. Hardy

Philip Dixon Hardy (1793-1875) was a printer and publisher in Dublin and Hardy's Miniature atlas is a delightful little book measuring only 90 x 75 mm. It commences with a frontispiece map of the world in hemispheres and engraved title-page, followed by 168 pages of geographical text, condensed from another of his publications. An atlas of twenty-eight maps, making a total of twenty-nine and not the thirty mentioned on the letterpress title-page, completes the tiny work. The numbered maps measure 64 x 81 mm. and are found both coloured and uncoloured:

The World; The World on Mercator's projn.; Europe; Asia; Africa; North America; South America; England and Wales; Scotland; Ireland; Spain and Portugal; France; Holland and the Netherlands; Austria; Italy; Prussia; Switzerland; Germany; Denmark; Norway and Sweden; Russia; Turkey in Europe; Turkey in Asia; Hindoostan; China; East India Islands; United States; Egypt; West India Islands.

Hardy's Miniature atlas, and comprehensive geography, containing thirty maps, with letter-press descriptions. Dublin, Hardy & Walker; London, Ball, Arnold, and Co., 1840.
